

We would like to invite you to participate in an online survey conducted by Queen Mary University of London and King's College London on the perception of doctors with a special interest in gastroenterology regarding the diagnosis of constipation, its treatments, as well as use of probiotics for constipation.

If you decide to take part in our survey, we will ask you to access the link below which will direct you to our online survey. You will be asked about what symptoms you believe constitute a diagnosis of constipation, what symptoms patients think are most bothersome, and the treatments you recommend for the relief of symptoms of constipation. There will also be questions on probiotics and whether you have ever recommended them as a treatment option for constipation. The survey should take no more than 10 mins. If you are still interested in taking part, please access the link below:
